On behalf of the Board of Directors, Management and Staff of LankaPay, I would like to wish all of you a New Year filled with happiness, prosperity and resilience. It is with great pleasure that I present the 8th edition of The Informant, highlighting the progress, new initiatives and our collective efforts that have shaped LankaPay's journey over the last quarter of 2025.

The fourth quarter of 2025 was an extraordinary period, marked by the unprecedented impact of Cyclone Deta and a significant operational challenge that we encountered for the first time since the implementation of the CCAPS project in 2013. This period served as a valuable opportunity for learning and reflection, as we entered 2026 with renewed focus and energy to strengthen Sri Lanka's national payment infrastructure. Our priorities included ensuring system stability, operational continuity, and scalability, while supporting the expanding adoption of digital payment solutions across government, businesses, and the public.

The continued growth of platforms such as GovPay and JustPay Web demonstrates increasing confidence in digital payments and highlights the importance of trust, security, and interoperability within our ecosystem. As digital financial services become more integral to daily life, LankaPay remains committed to providing solutions that are accessible, reliable, and aligned with national development goals.

We are encouraged by the ongoing collaboration between public and private sector stakeholders, whose shared commitment has been essential in navigating an evolving digital landscape. These partnerships are central to our efforts to build a resilient, future-ready payments ecosystem that supports Sri Lanka's broader vision of a digitally empowered economy.

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the Central Bank of Sri Lanka, our member institutions, government agencies, and technology partners for their continued guidance, cooperation, and trust. Looking ahead, LankaPay remains dedicated to advancing Sri Lanka's digital transformation with purpose, responsibility, and a focus on long-term impact.
